*Frederick Sasscer High School
Upper Marlboro, Maryland*

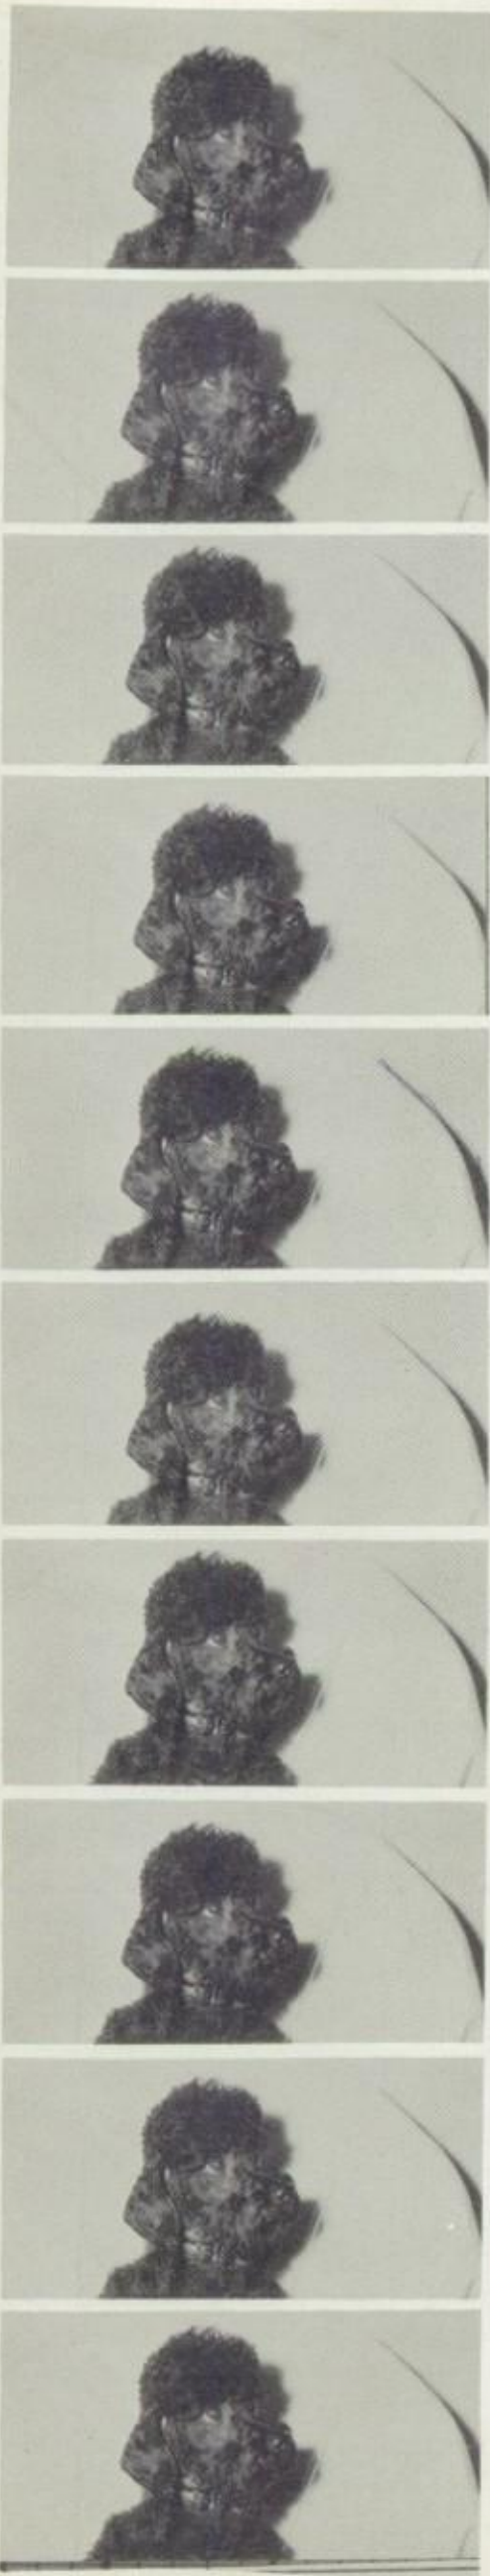

Allow me to introduce myself: I am the "Sasscer Devil." Before I take leave of Frederick Sasscer's halls for the last time, along with the graduating class of 1958, I should like to let my mind wander over the last nine months. I should like to visit each room, remembering the classes and the work put forth by my friends, the students; I should like to visit the gymnasium and allow the anticipation of victory to once again excite my senses; I should like to mingle once more among the busy students working to put on a successful play or dance; I should like to enter the library or the home economics room and observe again the students doing their best to carry out club responsibilities; I should like to feel the surge of pride in my students as they become part of such achievement organizations as National Honor Society, Thespian Society, and Quill and Scroll.

Above all, I should like for the students to relive these treasured memories with me, in the hope of better realizing the value of the education they are receiving, the importance of making the most of their high school years, and the gratitude to be shown for the efforts made by all of those who have been concerned with the future of Frederick Sasscer and its citizens.

The Elm Staff

Helpers to the rescue! What would we have done without them? (Carla Phelps, Beth Norfolk, Darlene Thornington.)

These twelfth grade ELM helpers are essential to the staff. (Georgia Ward, Barbara Sasscer, Helen Tayman, Pat Homolish.)

Curriculum

Core: A Subject For All

The sophomores work industriously to keep up with the changing map.

Sasscer's newest members did not know that current events could be so interesting.

Don't Study too hard

Core encompasses the better part of the student body. As the Core instructors put their knowledge of modern teaching methods to work, the students obtain a firm background in all phases of English and many interesting and salutary social studies.

Exploring The Riches Of Our World

According to Miss Barrett's world geography class, "Explorer" goes a long way in a short period of time.

Being acquainted with other lands and other peoples is becoming more and more important in our changing world. In geography class, the student obtains a well-rounded understanding of the world in which we live. Intensively studied are such things as natural resources, land fertility, governments, graph interpretations, and the customs of different countries.

Turning Back The Pages Of History

In American history class, the students turn back the pages of history and see the many great happenings, and meet the many great men that contributed to making this country what it is today. Through this study, the students look for and find a better understanding of our American heritage and our democratic way of life.

"And I was sure the South won!" insists Sonny Havenner, working with Eddie Curry and Marshall Courtney.

Seeing Democracy In Action

Problems of Democracy is a special course reserved for the seniors. Its purpose is to make the students better and more active citizens. Studied under its program are personal problems, American private enterprise system, and the structure of our government.

Four seniors are pursuing the seemingly endless task of writing their final term papers.

During P.O.D., something is amusing Catherine Beall, a senior, as she recites.

Understanding Our Native Tongue

"With malice toward none . . ."

"Homework for tomorrow . . ."

In English class, the students learn to effectively use their native tongue. They soon attain a firm knowledge of all three component parts of English — grammar, composition, and literature. In addition to creative writing, English students learn to appreciate the aesthetic values of poetry, prose, the essay, and drama created by the literary greats, both past and present.

Romance In Every Syllable

Spanish, one of the most romantic of all languages, is the foreign language of Sasscer. Mr. Carey, the Spanish instructor, over a three-year period, presents to the student a thorough foundation for knowing and understanding Spanish. Essentials of grammar are presented with intensive drill on pronunciation. Reading, dictation, exercises in translation, and conversation on simple topics are encouraged.

" . . . About twenty pages long, without errors!"

Two students in Spanish I are reciting to perfect their pronunciation.

Music Encourages Creativeness

In Mrs. Turner's music classes, students are able to bring out their best.

"Andante! Andante!" reminds Mr. Guzman to band member Jerry Shrewsbury.

The willing and desirous participants of the music classes are learning to appreciate one of the fine arts, and at the same time, put their talents and abilities to good use through Sasscer's Glee Club, Junior High Chorus, and Senior Sextet.

The creative facet of the music department exhibits promise of musical accomplishments for many of its members.

Capturing Individual Expressions

In the art department, students are able to put their creative abilities to work. They soon learn that a vivid imagination is a must. Through their imaginations, the students seek to capture their inner thoughts, and also, the beauties that surround them. This year, in particular, a surprisingly large number of Sasscer's artists showed outstanding abilities in this field.

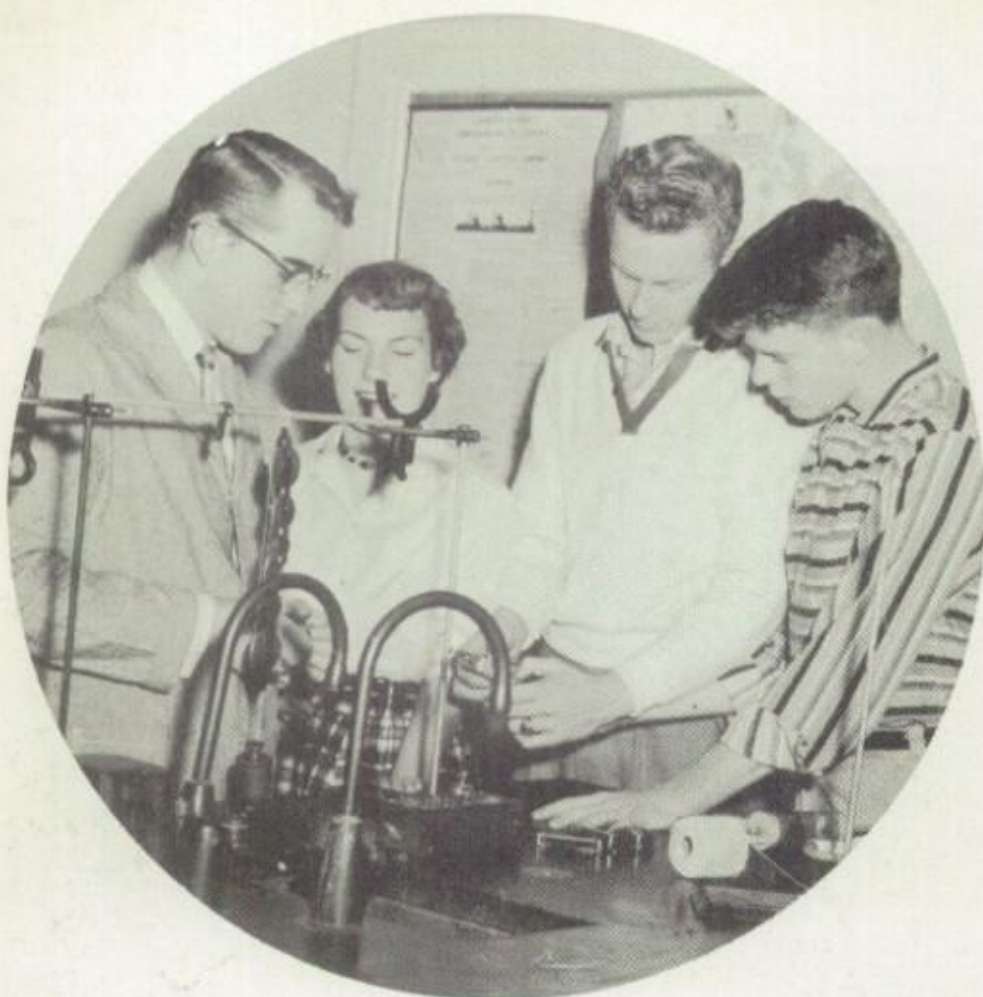

Mrs. Clagett offers some suggestions to one of her promising art students.

Three junior high girls are busily engaged in arts and crafts.

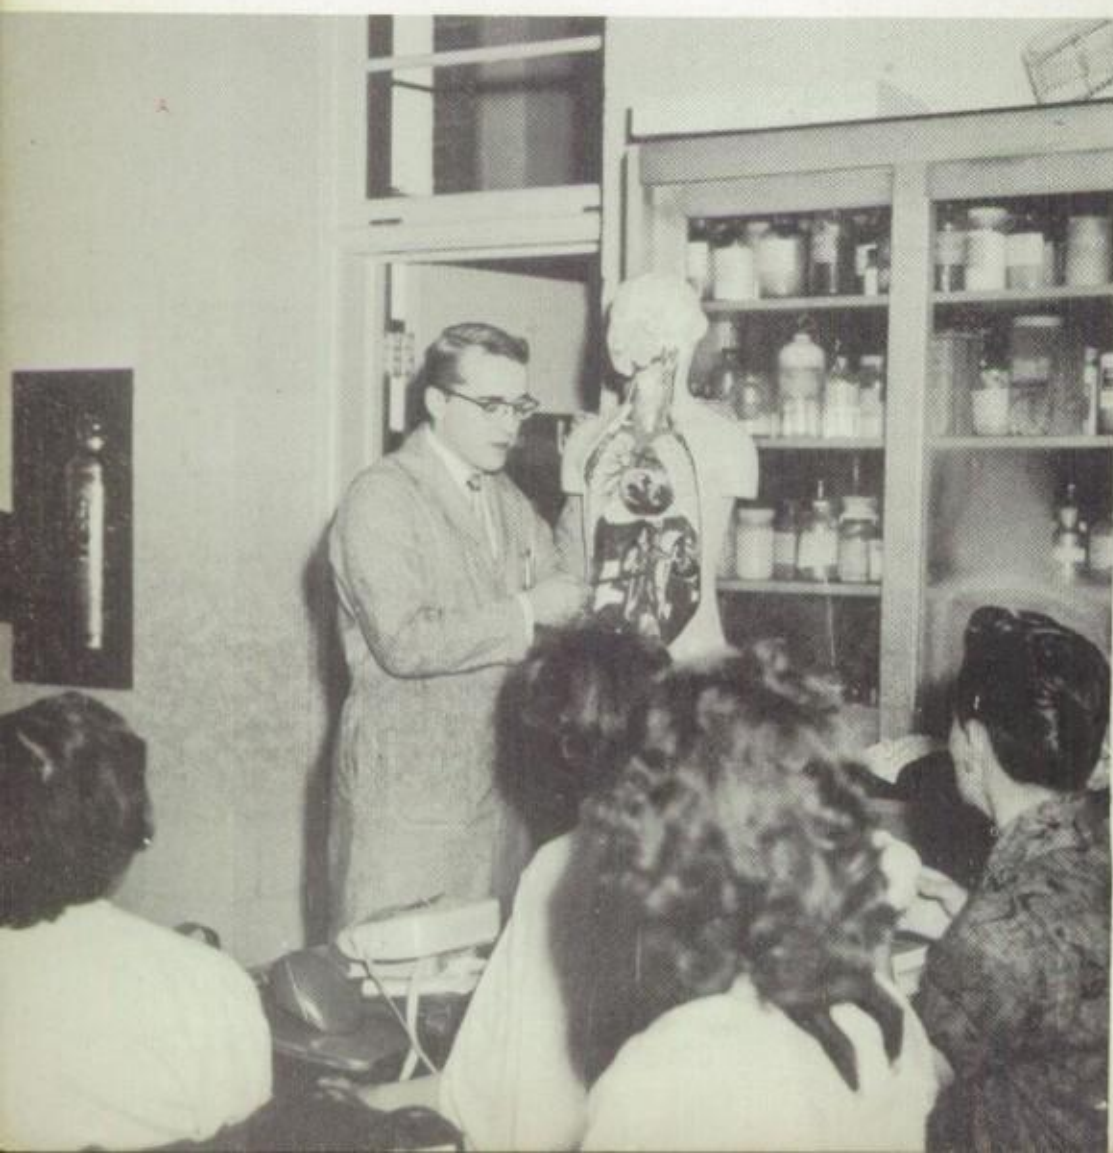

Physicists Mary Jane Brown, Vernon Buck, and Arthur Leitch explain a problem to Mr. Green, the instructor.

Science And Math . . .

"If you think the book is complicated, just take a look at this!"

Miss White is amazed at how quickly our seventh grade students can grasp elementary science.

"... is equal to the sums of the squares of the other two sides minus ..." Three "trig" students are busily computing a problem.

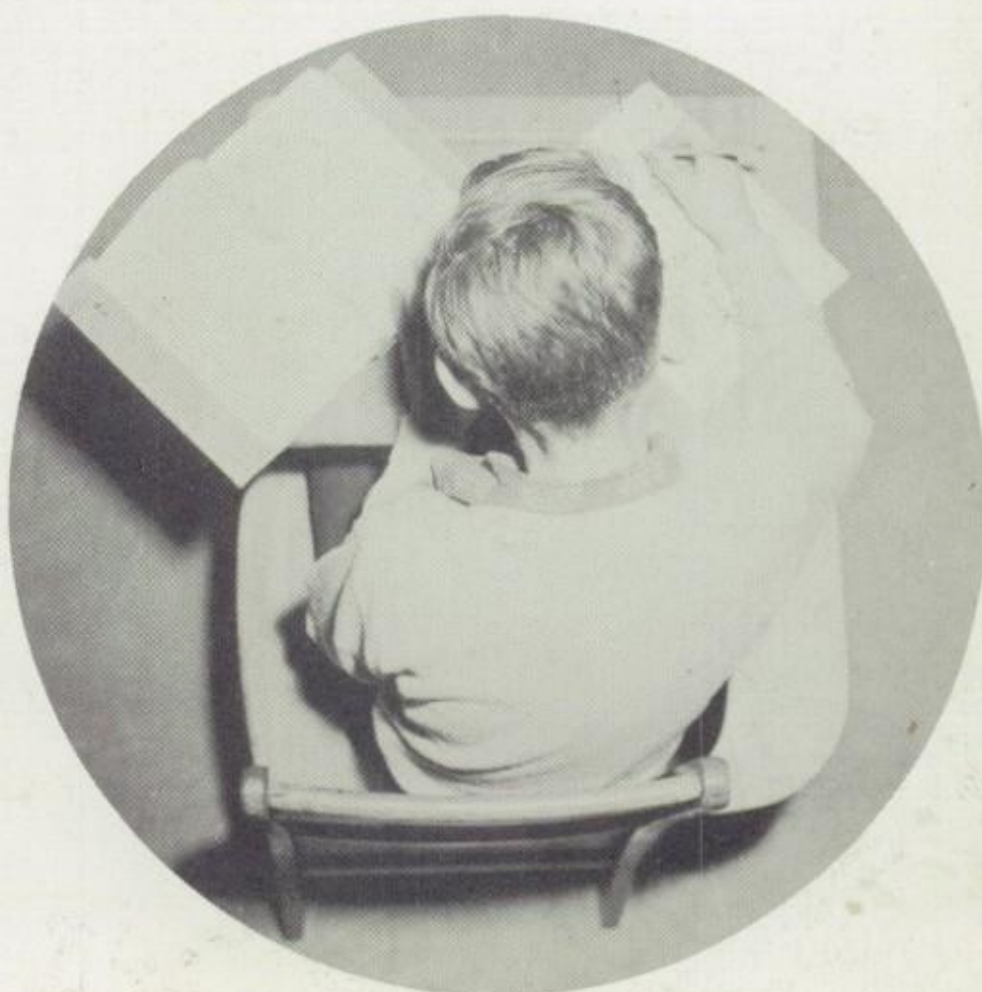

With the help of Mr. O'Keeffe, the mystery of elementary algebra is unraveling for these two ninth grade students.

... Go Hand And Hand

Under the careful guidance of our math department, this student is being given a good foundation in the subject.

Mathematics, the mother of all sciences, is continuously increasing in importance as our world progresses. A firm foundation in mathematics is an asset to every individual, whether he plans to seek a career based on the subject or not. It is for this reason that Sasscer has such a large and effective mathematics department—one with a thorough and practical program that is able to satisfactorily fulfill the individual needs of every student.

Youth Prepares . . .

With the widespread occupation of farming in and around Upper Marlboro, Sasscer encourages boys to carry the Vocational-Agricultural course, with two possible objectives: beginning work immediately after high school, or continuing their study at the University of Maryland, or some other equally fine agricultural college.

Contributing to the same objective is Sasscer's Home Economics Department. They strive to mold the characters of fine homemakers by preparing either for a higher education or to run a household smoothly immediately after high school.

Mrs. Duley checks the progress of these home economics students as they piece their skirts together.

"I wonder how I'll look when it's finished . . ." muses Jerry Hopkins.

Mr. Reckner, our former "ag." instructor, discusses the operation of the circular saw with some students.

The complex parts of this tractor are handled expertly by "The Gang."

Some senior girls are practicing their shorthand before taking Civil Service exams.

... For The Future

An important section at Frederick Sasser is the commercial department. Here, the students are prepared for the future in the business world.

Under the expert guidance of the commercial instructors, the students are given a varied training. Beginning with a general business course in the sophomore year, the commercial students, over a three-year period, receive training in shorthand, typing, bookkeeping, and the fundamentals of a well-organized office. This gives them a firm step on the long road to success.

Tomorrow's secretaries wrestle with today's secretarial problems.

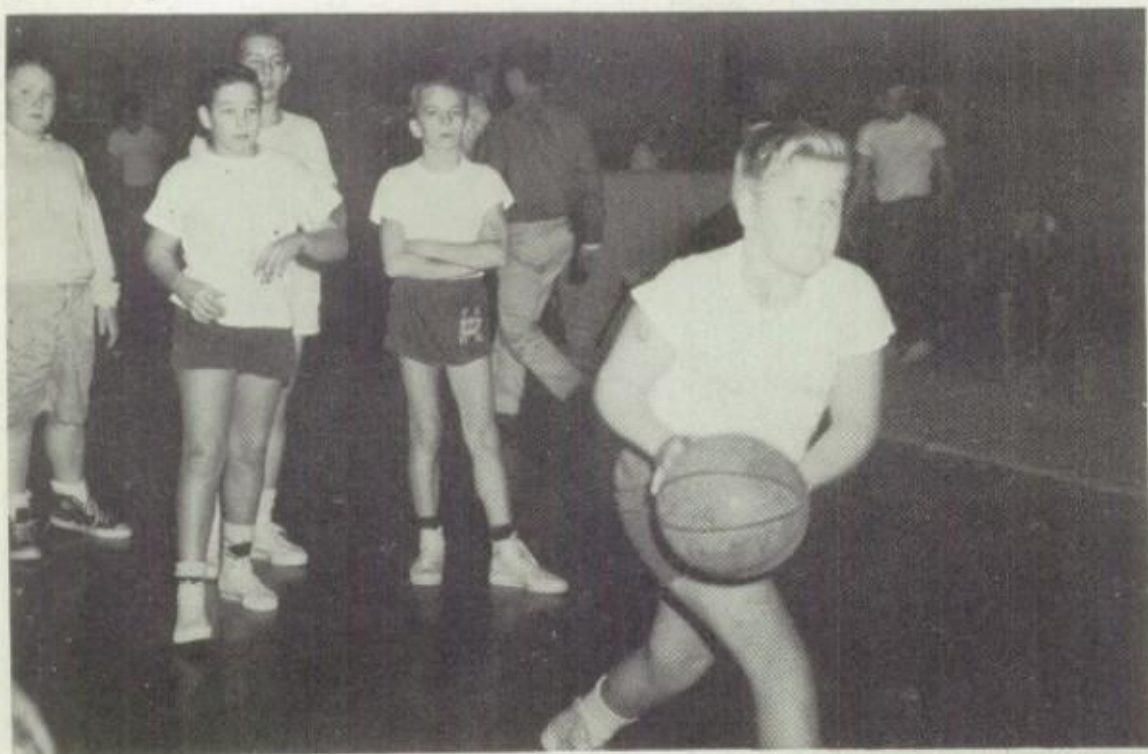

Shorthand is like another language, isn't it Pat?

Barbara Jay Jones and some of her commercial classmates are racing to beat that clock!

"Phys. Ed." Means Enjoyment

Boys' "phys. ed." classes help the students develop strong bodies and alert minds. Starting out early in the seventh grade, students are given fundamental training in such sports as soccer, basketball (pictured at left), and baseball. This early training brings about fine athletes for Sasscer's varsity teams.

Safe Driving For Our Highways

Making better and safer drivers for America's perilous highways is the main aim of Mr. Nemchick, Sasscer's driver education instructor. Both on the road and in the classroom, Sasscerites learn the important fundamentals of driving an automobile safely. Drive carefully, the life you save may be your own—this is a popular phrase to the driver education students.

Mr. Nemchick puts a student driver through his paces.

Organizations

A Just Reward...

The Quill and Scroll, an international journalistic society, honors those students who have shown outstanding abilities in the field of journalism. By taking full advantage of the Freedom of our American Press, together with putting their vivid imaginations to work, students inducted into this organization have bettered the standards of Sasscer's literary publications.

Through the Junior Honor Society, outstanding junior high students are able to gain justified recognition for possessing the qualities that characterize a well-rounded citizen—character, scholarship, service, and leadership.

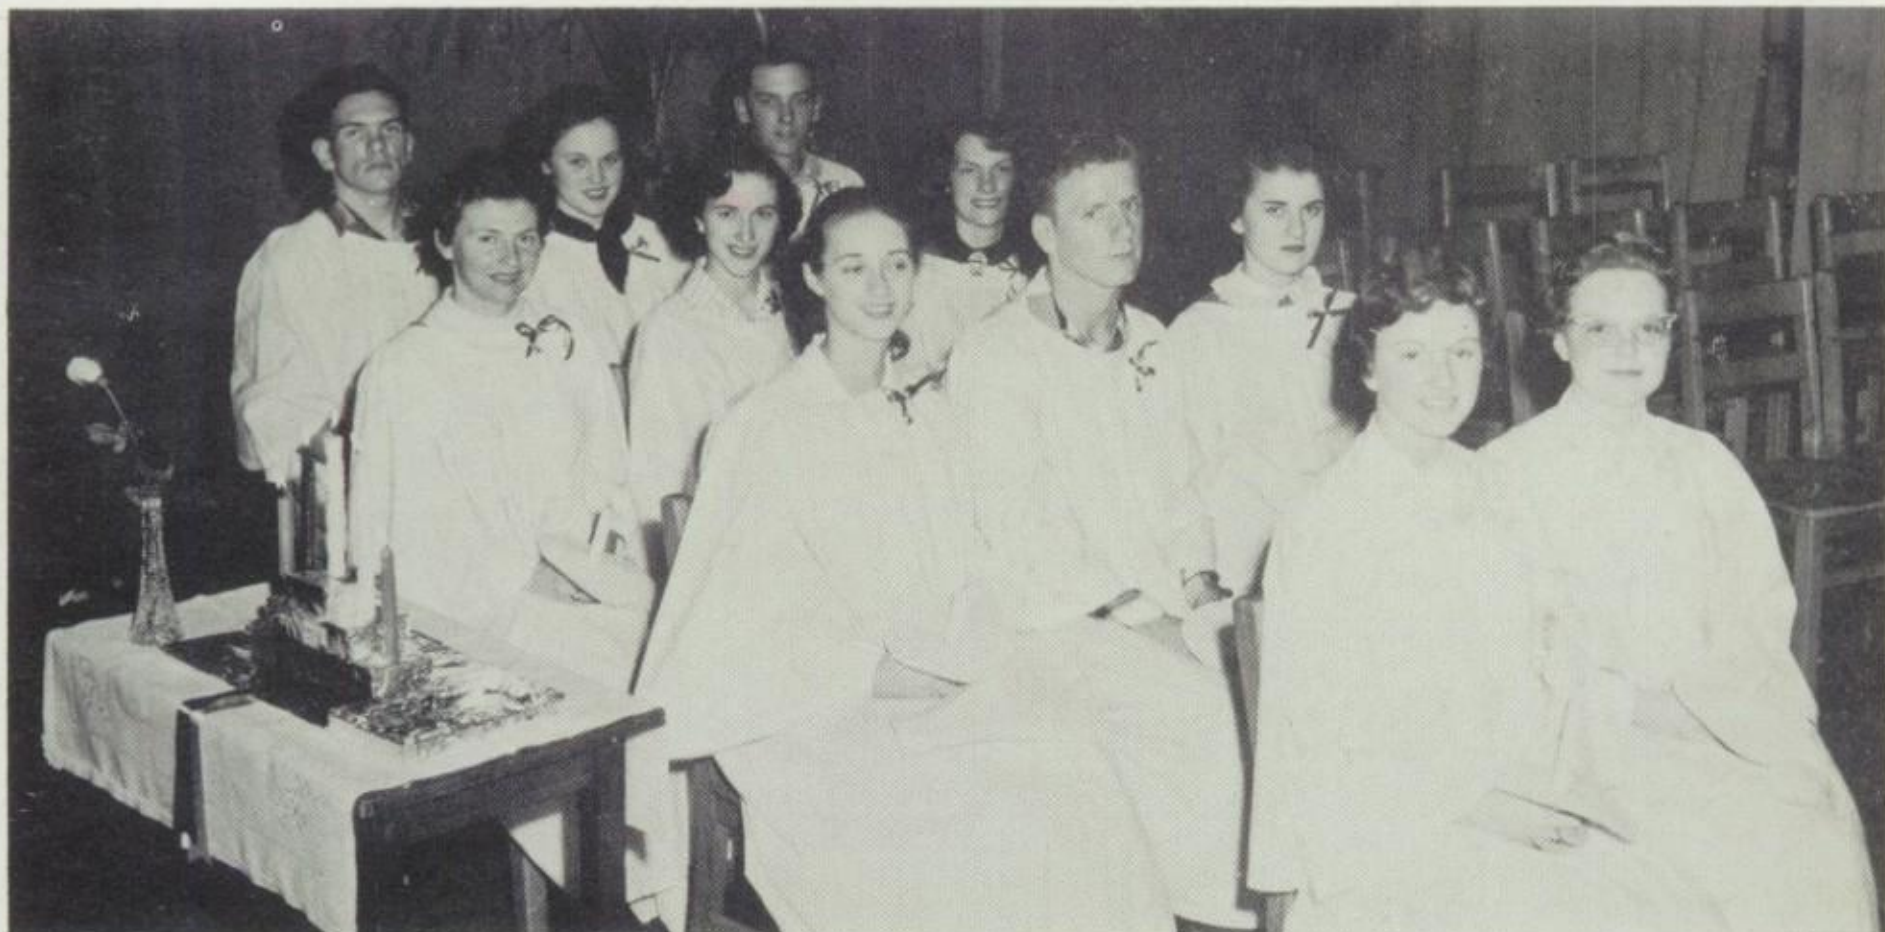

Part of this organization's constitution states that it must always be on hand to render any service that the school may call for.

... For Achievement

The National Honor Society is the most outstanding organization here at Frederick Sasscer. Those selected for this society are the exemplary students possessing the admirable qualities of scholarship, citizenship, leadership, service, and character.

An inspiring ceremony is held before the entire student body for the inducting of the new members, who when tapped, are filled with an untold emotion, an inexplicable sense of accomplishment.

Sasscer is proud of the students who reach this lofty goal—members of the National Honor Society.

An unexpected student, Judy Wilson, is about to be tapped for the Honor Society.

The newly tapped members of the National Honor Society take the oath together.

Leadership Develops Citizenship

The Student Council is the most active organization in the school. This year, in addition to always protecting the students' interest, the Student Council sponsored such things as the March of Dimes, Talent Show, and the organization of the Pep Club.

The members of Sasscer's Patrol Club enforce safety measures for additional good organization of the school by monitoring well the halls and buses; at the same time, they gain their peak of satisfaction by constantly maintaining an active, smoothly run club.

On Sasscer's Club Days

Club days are eventful days for the Sasscerites as each student goes his separate way to participate in the club of his choice. He may join a certain club in preparation for a career, to further his individual abilities, or for just plain enjoyment; but, whatever his reason, the results will inevitably be rewarding.

At Sasscer, many active and stimulating clubs beckon to each and every student. A number of these clubs, such as the F. F. A., F. H. A., and Library Club, are chapters of larger, state or nation-wide organizations. Still others are independent clubs formed wholly within the school. But, all stress the member's individual abilities by giving him a chance to demonstrate his hidden talents. Whatever club a student decides to join, he can feel confident that he will have a supremely enjoyable time.

Sports

"Team is in a huddle . . ."

The Soccer team—one we shall always be proud of.

The Sasscerites are extremely proud of their soccer team, who with a slow start accelerated to a fine finish. This fine finish saw the "Devils", after finishing with a 7-2-2 record, playing the Prince George's County championship game against Gwynn Park. Although the game was lost 4-2, no one can deny that Sasscer played a superb game.

This year of '58 presented to the Sasscerites a thrilling and eventful basketball season. The Sasscerites are proud of their baseball team even though they did not win every game. Gallantly challenging nearby schools, the team went through a thrilling and eventful season. They may not have come out on top; but they do deserve praise for a noticeable showing.

Frederick Sasscer has an extensive program of competitive sports; but equally as exciting as boys' sports are Intramurals. At the beginning of each school term, the Intramural Council meets and plans the year's schedule for Intramural and inter-school activities for girls.

The Alumni volleyball game was a struggle to the end, but the Senior girls were the victors.

Warming up for the big game, the Senior girls practice foul shots.

In a huddle, the girls anxiously await the starting whistle.

As June rolls around and students anxiously look forward to their summer vacations, there is a brief but definite period of silent affection for the school in which they have experienced both joys and sorrows for the last nine months. At the same time, they are saying their last farewells to the Seniors, wishing them God speed and good luck. •

For both graduate and undergraduate students, the days at Frederick Sasser will be remembered as worthwhile days, always full and eventful. When they look back upon them in their minds, they will treasure the memory of friends and places; and when they look throughout the pages of this yearbook, the vision will become more vivid.

Farewell

We wish to invite the people of the five Southern Maryland Counties to support and encourage their neighboring Exhibitors at the coming Fair in September.
